

The program of Sciences Po in Lille offers a selective educational environment for students interested in studying the various political and economic issues impacting France and the European Union. In addition, Reed students may take classes at the University of Lille III, which offers courses in humanities and social science